LinkedIn Profile Playbook

A complete, sponsor-ready LinkedIn setup for racing drivers and athletes.

GRIDFLOW STANDARD

Use this beside the interactive GridFlow Academy. Tick the practical checks as you complete them; never record passwords, verification codes or private provider keys in this document.

The outcome

A sponsor should understand who you are, what you are building, why your work is credible and how to start a conversation within about thirty seconds. LinkedIn is your professional front door; GridFlow helps you prepare it but never controls the account.

ACCURACY RULE

Only use facts you can defend. Do not imply a current team, championship, sponsor, result, audience size or relationship that is not accurate.

01

Create the account

Open <https://www.linkedin.com/signup>. Use your real first and last name, an email you control and a unique password. Complete LinkedIn's verification inside LinkedIn.

- ☐ Add a recovery email or phone that you control.
- ☐ Never paste the password or verification code into GridFlow.
- ☐ If an account already exists, recover it instead of creating duplicates.

Use a clear, recent headshot. Add a clean racing or programme banner you have the right to publish. Set the region where you are professionally active.

- ☐ Face remains recognisable when the photo is small.
- ☐ No expired sponsor logos or unlicensed artwork.
- ☐ Banner still reads clearly on mobile.

03

Write the headline

Use: current role or series | programme or ambition | credible commercial themes.
Example: GT Racing Driver | Building a European endurance programme | Performance, technology and brand partnerships.

- ☐ More specific than 'Racing Driver'.
- ☐ No unsupported claims such as champion, elite or global.
- ☐ Readable without abbreviations a sponsor may not know.

04

Write the About section

Write in first person and use four short blocks: current programme; evidence-backed journey; audience/access/content value; invitation to connect.

- ☐ Programme and goals are current.
- ☐ Results and milestones can be verified.
- ☐ Partnership value is concrete, not generic.
- ☐ Final sentence makes the next conversation easy.

About template

I compete in [series/category] with [team/programme], currently focused on [current objective].

My journey includes [two or three verified milestones]. I bring [relevant audience, geography, access, content capability or technical insight] to the work around the track.

I am interested in partnerships where [shared business or brand objective] can create credible stories and measurable value.

Connect with me to discuss motorsport, performance and a collaboration built around shared objectives.

05

Experience and results

Create an Experience entry for your current role as a driver or athlete. Add accurate dates, team/programme, series, responsibilities, selected results and partnership activity.

- ☐ Current entry has start date and accurate title.
- ☐ Older entries show progression without repetition.
- ☐ Achievements name the event, year and outcome.

06

Featured proof

Choose a small set of proof: race reel, media kit, official result, credible press, website or sponsor case study. Test each link in a private browser tab.

- ☐ Every link opens without requesting private access.
- ☐ Thumbnail and title are professional.
- ☐ Old or weak evidence is removed.

07

Skills, education and recommendations

Place the three most commercially useful skills first, then add honest supporting skills. Include relevant licences, education and certifications. Request recommendations only from people who can speak to real work.

- ☐ Motorsport/performance skill included.
- ☐ Partnership/content/public-speaking skills included where true.
- ☐ No keyword stuffing.

08

Custom URL and visibility

On desktop: Me > View Profile > Public profile & URL > edit the custom URL. Use a variation of your name or professional brand. Review which sections are public.

- ☐ URL begins linkedin.com/in/ and is easy to share.
- ☐ Public sections match your intent.
- ☐ Public email/phone exposure is deliberate, not accidental.

09

Two-factor authentication

Open Settings & Privacy > Sign in & security > Two-factor authentication. LinkedIn recommends an authenticator app as the preferred method. Store recovery access safely.

- ☐ Two-factor authentication enabled.
- ☐ Recovery method tested and controlled by you.
- ☐ No code saved in GridFlow, email drafts or screenshots.

10

First-week professional routine

Connect with people you genuinely know, follow target companies, add current proof and make a small number of thoughtful interactions. Then use GridFlow to research before preparing LinkedIn notes.

- ☐ No mass connection requests.
- ☐ Each note has a real reason for the connection.
- ☐ You perform every LinkedIn action yourself.

Final profile review

Read the profile aloud. Remove jargon, repetition and claims that sound generic. View it while signed out or in a private tab. Check spelling, dates, working links and mobile layout. Paste the final public URL into GridFlow onboarding.

- ☐ Identity is accurate.
- ☐ Headline and About sound human.
- ☐ Evidence links work.
- ☐ Visibility is deliberate.
- ☐ Two-factor authentication is active.
